

COUNTRY NEEDS A REVIVAL, SAYS BILLY SUNDAY, TO SAVE IT FROM DISSOLUTION

Nation Is Commercially Drunk, Declares Evangelist, and Is Facing Domination of Material Love Over Spiritual; Responsibility Up to People, Not God

"America has got to have a real revival, one like those at Pentecost and Wales, to prevent the absolute dissolution of the home, the church, the state and the nation."
In this manner did Billy Sunday express his opinion of the worth of revivals during his sermon at the tabernacle last night. The sermon was a "Defense of Revivals."
"Never in the history of Christianity were there more isms and schisms than at present; we need a panic in religion. You say revivals are abnormal—you lie. The minister who knocks a revival is a disgrace to the church; and I don't care whether he wears his collar button in front or behind. This church was born in a revival and the days of the revival are not over; and they won't be over until God abrogates his throne and gives it over to the devil!"

The Rev. Mr. Sunday was on his mettle. He was not bitter, he was not sarcastic—but he was logical and convincing. He tore to shreds the arguments of those who ridicule revivals; then, to further impress the disbelief, he cited proof after proof of their real value. He left untouched scarcely any matter bearing on the subject.

Holds Audience Spellbound

And through it all his audience sat almost spellbound. At times he was highly dramatic; again he was as the man conversing gaily with his best friend. Now he was serious intensely so; then he was humorous. But, whether dramatic, informal, serious or humorous, he never missed an opportunity to press home his arguments; to make his audience accept the word of God as he sees it written.

Billy Sunday proved conclusively last night that he knows people, and knows them mightily well. Few who had heard him before doubted this, but the minds of these doubters were cleared in such a way that they never again will become clouded. Sunday started his sermon in a light vein; he worked his audience up into a high-strung frame of mind. Then, before his hearers were aware of it, he began to hammer facts into them. He talked seriously and made them think. Then, they became just a little bit tired. But the evangelist saw it before the crowd itself realized it. He told them of several humorous incidents, got their attention centered on himself and himself alone; then he hammered more facts at them.

It is a delight to watch the man work. And he does work. It is doubtful if 10 hours of the hardest physical labor would be more tiring than the hour and a half of mental labor Billy Sunday performed last night. He is constantly feeling the pulse of his audience. And not once did he diagnose the case wrong.

Of course, those bits of wisdom, expressed in slang, which are peculiar to Billy Sunday, formed the basis of the entire sermon. His original remarks on matters as old as civilization; his own peculiar manner of expressing facts already expressed thousands of times; his attention-compelling comparisons; and, above all, his knowledge of just when to use these assets—these form Billy Sunday's power as a preacher, or rather an evangelist. You say a revival's temporary; well, so's a bath—but it does you good. Is the way Billy Sunday clinches his argument. Compare it with the several hundred-word polished rebuttal that the average minister would prepare and deliver.

The minister bewails the fact that there are so many sinners in the world and so few true Christians. Billy Sunday says: "There are mighty few folks who don't need to be taken down to God's bath-house and have the hose turned on 'em." It's safe to say few people will forget the expression.

"The devil can get more church members to a leg-athon than God can get down on their knees to pray," Billy

B. D. ACKLEY COMPOSES SONGS FOR SUNDAY WHILE OTHERS IN EVANGELIST'S PARTY REST

Music Must Have a Punch, Declares Noted Pianist, and Strong Parts Emphasized

Half an hour before the service at the Sunday tabernacle yesterday afternoon, B. D. Ackley sat at the piano on the platform, running his fingers lightly over the keyboard. His eyes roamed down one side of the big auditorium, the other, but he saw no one; he was entirely oblivious to the several hundred persons sitting below him. Suddenly he would stop, jot down something on a piece of paper propped up before him, then begin again. The music was barely audible in the auditorium; it was soft and sweet and low, like a lullaby.

The audience had to be content to simply watch his hands and strain its ears in an effort to catch the theme of the pieces the pianist was playing so softly. The actions of the musician and the listening attitude of the people further aroused a reporter's curiosity, and the inquisitive one mounted the balcony and Mr. Ackley's at the house, so I came over here. I usually do this at night after all the others have gone to bed. You see, it is so soft that it wouldn't disturb anyone.

COLORADO CROPS ARE BETTER THAN USUAL

Conditions Throughout the Country 2.2 Per Cent Above Average

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The composite condition of many important crops in the United States on June 9 was about 2.2 per cent above the 10-year average for that date, the department of agriculture announced today. Last year the June 1 condition was 1.2 per cent below.

The most promising crop this year was winter wheat with a condition of 14.7 per cent above its 10-year average, while cotton stood at the bottom of the list with 7.6 per cent below.

Condition of other crops on June 9, expressed in percentage of their 10-year averages are:

Apples, 110.5; alfalfa, 108.5; sugar beets, 104.5; peaches, 104.7; cantaloupe, 102.6; hay (all), 101.5; oats, 101; cabbage, 97.5; onions, 98.3; watermelons, 96.6.

The following figures indicate general crop conditions on June 1 in Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Texas, Arizona, Oklahoma and Wyoming, 1909 representing the 10-year average of all crops reported upon.

Texas, 85.5; Oklahoma, 101.8; Wyoming, 102.2; Colorado, 108.2; New Mexico, 107; Arizona, 102.6; Utah, 105.8.

Average prices of producers on June 1 were lower on a number of articles than the average of the last five years on that date.

Wheat average on June 1 was 3.44 a bushel compared with the five-year average of 3.44. Oats, barley, rye, flax, hay, potatoes and butter showed varying decreases. Corn, buckwheat, cotton, chicken and eggs brought slightly higher average prices.

SUNDAY'S MEETINGS OPEN AND CLOSE AS SCHEDULED

Every meeting will be called promptly at the time set, regardless of the number present or other conditions, and will close on schedule. Those desiring to attend the meetings may make arrangements for half an hour after the time set for closing without fear of being compelled to break them because of a prolonged session.

District 4, Ashbury M. E. church, Rev. L. K. Peacock.

District 5, Colorado City M. E. church, Homer Rodeheaver.

District 6, Manitou Congregational church, Miss Grace Saxe.

Districts 7 and 8, Cheyenne school, Rev. Fink.

District 9, Payne A. M. E., Fred R. Seibert.

ROOSEVELT GUEST OF KING ALFONSO

WILLARD ROOSEVELT WEDDING TODAY

Religious Ceremony Will Be Performed Tomorrow; Colonel Witness

MADRID, June 9.—King Alfonso and Queen Victoria were the hosts of former President Roosevelt today at a luncheon at their summer palace at La Granja, 40 miles from Madrid.

Colonel Roosevelt and his party, which included Ambassador Willard, Mrs. Nicholas, Longworth, Kermit Roosevelt and his fiancée, Miss Belle Willard, and Capt. Norton E. Wood, military attaché, proceeded to the palace in automobiles. There were many titled persons at the luncheon. On his return, the colonel declared in his characteristic manner that he had a "bull time."

The Spanish king and the former president are old acquaintances, having met for the first time at the funeral of King Edward VII in London, and the colonel is an admirer of King Alfonso's democratic ways. During the three hours they were together they found much time for a discussion of Spanish history, of which the colonel has been a close student.

How Colonel Likes King.

The famous fountain in the gardens of La Granja was a source of delight to no less than a drive around the top of the mountain. (This was found for a debt to the general manager, which dates back to the 18th century.)

Colonel Roosevelt will continue his sightseeing tomorrow, and is planning a trip to Toledo.

To the question of a Spanish newspaper man, "How do you like our king?" the colonel made a tactful but uncommittal reply. He referred in flattering terms and asserted that the Spanish language would eventually supplant French in common usage in account of the development of South America.

The premier, Eduardo Dato, the minister of foreign affairs, Marquis de Lema, and the governor of Madrid, left cards for Colonel Roosevelt at the American embassy.

Preparations for the wedding of Kermit Roosevelt and Miss Willard have been completed. The formal wedding of the civil ceremony will be the Duke of Alba and Señor Donayma Sola.

The witnesses at the religious ceremony will be Colonel Roosevelt and Ambassador Willard.

There was a family dinner tonight at the embassy, which is still guarded.

24,000 Have Heard Sunday's Sermons

The five sermons preached by Billy Sunday in Colorado Springs thus far have been heard by approximately 24,000 people, or just 7,000 less than the total population of this city and not quite one-half the entire population of the Pike's Peak region. The figures are:

Sunday morning	5,000
Sunday afternoon	2,500
Sunday evening	7,500
Tuesday afternoon	2,000
Tuesday evening	7,000
Total	24,000

MANY ARE INJURED IN ITALIAN STRIKE RIOTS

Government Alarmed Over Resistance to Repressive Labor Policy

ROME, June 9.—The general strike proclaimed yesterday as a protest against the repressive measures taken by the government in connection with demonstrations at Ancona Sunday, when several men were shot down, is gaining in intensity. The resentment of the workmen has been fanned by the killing of another striker at Florence today.

The government views the movement with anxiety, as it is believed to be supported not only by the Socialists, but by the Radical party, which is anxious to embarrass the Salandra ministry. The premier was subjected to strong criticism in the chamber today for prohibiting anti-militarist meetings on June 7.

In Rome tonight 1,000 strikers tried to march to the Quirinal and came into violent contact with the troops and police, who fired nine volleys in the air before the mob retreated.

Many Are Injured.

A large number of soldiers and strikers were injured. The strikers attempted to reorganize their shattered ranks, and another fierce engagement with the police took place before they were dispersed.

In cities where the strike was in force no newspapers were published.

After forcing all the stores and shops of disorder, at Genoa, the strikers compelled the storekeepers to close their places of business. At Turin, rioters seized two wagon loads of tobacco belonging to the state and threw several cases of cigarettes through the windows of a cafe and burned the remainder before cavalry dispersed them.

At Venice several clashes occurred between strikers and police, one of the latter being seriously injured.

DEMOCRACY MAY SPLIT ON TOLLS

REPEAL-TILLMAN

SCORES PRES. WILSON ON PRESSING QUESTION

Says Roosevelt Already Has Observed Affairs and Taken Up Issue

WASHINGTON, June 9.—The senate marched steadily forward today toward final action on the bill to repeal the tolls exemption clause of the Panama canal act, but leaders were unwilling tonight to predict on which day a vote can be taken on the bill.

Even with a night session tonight, there was no certainty of a vote on the first proposition to be disposed of, the so-called Simmons-Norris amendment qualifying the terms of the bill.

Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, today made an unusual speech criticizing the president's long campaign for the tolls issue, saying the country at this time, and emphasizing the chances of the Democratic party in the congressional elections next fall.

Senator Tillman announced he would vote for repeal only because he felt his state party convention had freed him from the tolls issue in the Baltimore platform.

Tillman Flays President.

"I stagger in my common sense and I have been unable to understand why he projected the fight on his party at this time," Senator Tillman said, in discussing the president's demand for repeal. "It is of great importance to the Democratic party to control the house at the next election and I believe the president should have kept quiet until that election was over. It would have been the best statesmanship to have done so."

Until this issue was pressed to the front, the course of Democracy had been onward and upward. The opposition was hopeless and helpless. There was wisdom in silence and it would have been golden. There are so many things of more importance that the Democrats ought to do that I must say in my opinion it was a great blunder on the part of the president. The Democratic party, instead of presenting a solid united front, is split into contending factions.

Fears the Colonel.

The senator recalled that Theodore Roosevelt, the great adventurer, had come home delighted. Then he devoted his attention to Senator O'Grady, anti-repeal leader, suggesting that in the next campaign the New York senator would have some difficulty in explaining why two planks so antagonistic as the tolls and ship subsidy planks were placed into the Baltimore platform.

Senator O'Grady, of Kentucky, alluded to the vote of a vote on the tolls exemption, repeal bill, tonight, drew aside the veil and exposed some of the strong feeling among Democratic senators divided over the controversy. Senator James made an attack on the position of Senator O'Grady, leader of the anti-repeal forces, declaring that the New York senator had been the valiant defender of the toll plank of the platform, but had failed to be the champion of another plank just as important when opportunity offered.

Senator O'Grady, at a night session, the galleries were filled with spectators.

U. S. OPPOSES PEACE PLANS OF MEDIATORS

Will Refuse to Recognize Government Selected by General Huerta

HIT SNAG IN NEGOTIATIONS

South Americans Favor the Federals; Rebels Also Must Be Considered

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 9.—The United States is unwilling to extend recognition to a new provisional president if named according to the method prescribed by the Mexican constitution, it was learned tonight. The method is that General Huerta could appoint as minister of foreign affairs the man who is agreed upon here to head the new government.

The Washington administration contends that if General Huerta is permitted to name the foreign minister, who by constitutional succession will be elevated to the presidency, even though the selection is made here, such an act would be construed as recognition of the Huerta government.

On this issue, the mediating plenipotentiaries came to a disagreement today at a conference held for consideration of the exact methods by which the new provisional government in Mexico would be created.

Mediators Strike Snag.

For more than two hours the mediators and American delegates argued in vain and it was apparent when the conference ended that what hitherto had been considered a subject of detail had suddenly developed a snag. Although the three South American plenipotentiaries argued strongly from the Mexican viewpoint, there was good reason to believe tonight that the Mexican delegates would not insist upon the arrangement if they found the United States determined against it.

One of the Mexican delegates insisted that they regarded the form of transition as a technicality which could be dispensed with if the Americans found it impossible to agree to the method suggested by the Mexican delegates. The mediators contended that the forms of the Mexican constitution should be preserved in the present instance.

Consider Rebels' Side.

The American delegates are understood to have pointed out that the Constitutionists would never agree to a plan of transition which legalized Huerta's status. Also the American government was asserted could not consistently with its previous consent extend what would be tantamount to recognition if Huerta actually appointed his own successor.

There is a possibility that a compromise will be agreed upon. Early tomorrow will see the minister of foreign affairs when President Madero was assassinated, could be reappointed to the cabinet and succeed to the provisional presidency and then appoint a foreign minister the man agreed upon by all parties for the new provisional executive.

GIFTS TO COLORADO COLLEGE AMOUNTED TO $133,639 DURING LAST TWELVE MONTHS

One Hundred Thousand for New Department; Final Exercises to Be Held Today

Colorado college received gifts amounting to $133,639 during the last year, $100,000 of which was for the new department of business and finance, according to President Stocum's annual report at the annual meeting of the board of trustees, held yesterday morning in Palmer hall. Cossitt hall, he said, cost $112,000, with equipment.

The president's report summarized the events of the year and told of the various plans which have already been announced.

The final exercises of the week will be held today, when degrees will be awarded to 75 seniors and three post-graduate students. Honors for the year will be announced, and a number of scholarships to undergraduates will be made public. The commencement exercises will be held at 10 a. m. at Perkins hall, and the procession of members of the faculty, members of the graduating class and alumni will form at Palmer hall and march to Perkins hall.

OUR DUTY TO OUR NEIGHBORS

RECIPROCITY is one of the fundamentals of good business; you trade with me and I trade with you. Another of the essentials of making a business success is the personal equation. The merchant who knows his customers, gets them by the hand when they come into the store, calls upon them occasionally and fraternizes generally, has a big leverage over the one who sticks to his counting house, finger-finger the money, and, when he does get time for a visit, runs over to Europe or down to Newport.

These little things are dropped in here for the purpose of pointing out that the sociability-run men who went to Texas and Oklahoma last month came back charged with a vast enthusiasm regarding the possibilities of that region as a winter retreat for Colorado people. Hundreds of Coloradans go to California every winter, never suspecting that they could take their automobiles and run down into Texas in a few days, where they would find an unrivaled winter climate, fine beaches and some of the most magnificent hotels in the world. Texas people come here in the summer. They have found us. Now it is up to our people to find them. Colorado has its cool nights, altitude and tonic climate to offer the faded sojourner from Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas. He needs this as a part of his vacation treatment and finds it here closer than elsewhere.

But Coloradans take vacations, too, after they have looked to their summer guests, and their vacations come at a time when the region from which the visitors had is at its best. Reciprocity should enter somewhat into the selection, we should get into the habit of going to the south as well as to the Pacific coast. California sends us nothing that she can keep, although our people are her best tourist customers. After 1915 travel towards the Pacific coast will have largely spent itself, and Texas resorts should put forth every effort to attract Colorado people seeking a land of flowers and restful resorts in the winter time.

A glance at the maps shows the natural interdependence of the southwest and the Rocky mountain region, and speaks loudly for fine highways connecting them. Trade and travel like other things follow the lines of least resistance. Coloradans traveling to the southwest do not find a panicky region striving to live on the occasional traveler or anxious to unload its real estate. Instead, after a day or two of travel the finds himself in a region of great natural beauty, filled with solid and substantial cities that have not stopped growing or been overthrown, an agricultural land which at this moment is sagging with rich harvests.

Every member of the little band that went on the sociability run is now a booster and press agent for all the great region to the southeast of us—Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas—the land that was "spiced out" on that 2,500-mile trip—and still is no less a booster for his "ain countrie."

A PARK WITH A MISSION

THE playground teacher has returned, and next Monday the "kiddies" will find their organized play at Monument Valley Park awaiting them. More and more the Palmer gift is growing into the real playground of the city, and it has a destiny that will be far reaching. Right in the heart of the city, it offers a wonderful variety of outdoor things—wooded land, lakes, running streams, flower gardens made by men and flower gardens that the men have not touched, playgrounds for children and playgrounds for men and boys.

Every Saturday and Sunday afternoon the amateur teams will play, and good natured people sit on the grass and enjoy it. One of the interesting facts is that the growing youths who for the most part make use of the free ball grounds have undertaken to look after its moral conditions themselves, and have effectually squelched profanity or roughness.

The Boulder street steps to the Park have been completed now, so elderly folks and others somewhat incapacitated will find it easy to get down directly into "pillow park," the wooded portion of Monument Valley Park. The children from some of the primary schools used willow park last week for their folk dances, and the trade-unions of the city are anticipating using it again this year as a picnic-ground and meeting place on Labor Day.

The poor man cannot afford frequently to pay 20 cents apiece for himself and several members of his family in order to go to the mountains on a Sunday outing. But they can go to Monument Valley Park without cost and get all the recreation they need, and just as much natural beauty. That is the great mission of the park.

ATTACKS ON CHAUTAUQUA "ARTISTS"

LEGISLATION against the Chautauqua evil was sure to come. The fearful microbe which causes perfectly safe men and women to want to leave their happy homes in summer time and live amid bugs and creeping things such as insect-tent life, which urges them to sit under sweltering suns day after day watching snake charmers or listening to long-haired men and short-haired women give out recipes for regulating the earth, which calls unceasingly to statement in and out of jobs to come and lecture at so much per, is being tracked to its lair. Once upon a time the Chautauqua in its native haunts was "high brow," but now it has taken the place of the old-fashioned camp meeting down in the middle farming states—it is an opportunity to live out in the open for a more or less serious purpose.

Britten is the name of the intrepid knight who now rides into the arena, and he gives challenge by baiting that lion of the summer platform, William Jennings Bryan, threatening him with jail. It would be painful to see our Secretary of State on a hunger strike, or submitting to forcible feeding, that the rights of the Chautauqua performers might endure.

There are many foods in the world equal in nutritive value to much of the meat that the average man buys. Meat is a stimulant and people form the idea that they are suffering a hardship when compelled to do without it, when in fact many people live a long time without eating meat. This is no argument pro or con vegetarianism or flesh eating. It points out that the health departments of many cities are warning the public against too much meat-eating in the summer days.

Everything is real in California, they say, and nobody ever sees things. Yet the press dispatches carry information that pink snow is falling into a crater, which, in turn, lets off steam 700 feet high. Chief Stark and his assistants at the local police station are very patient with people brought in there who see violet and pink mice, but we are an exceptionally tolerant sort of folk when it comes to personal rights in noisily colors and mentioning the fact.

KANSAS HUMOR

From the Cripple Creek Times.
 Wichita, Kan., ought to succeed in unloading upon Colorado Springs the Dry Farming congress which John T. Burns, the secretary, "fished" on the "metropolis of the inland empire," after the meeting a year ago at Tulsa, Okla. But it is doubtful if Wichita will succeed as Colorado Springs is still dodging debts accumulated by the congress four years ago, and, besides, John T. Burns is a frazzled every time dry farming is mentioned.

This is all wrong for the truth of the matter is the foothill city got a million dollars worth of free advertising which it could never have obtained in any other way and the only men who appreciated the fact were Irving Howbert and William Leggett. So far as the newspapers and the general public were concerned, Mr. Burns became hump-backed and crossed-eyed drawing the load. Wichita tried to get even by firing John T. Burns for the free-handed manner in which he wished the thing on the rural population of an innocent town—but it is evident that this didn't help any from the character of the communication which Secretary Henderson has received from the commercial bodies of Wichita.

It doesn't appear just yet what Colorado Springs has ever done to Wichita; but it is fair to presume that something has occurred to induce the Kansas town to harbor such a mean spirit of revenge.

THEIR SELFISH MOTIVE.

From the Ault Advertiser.
 Have you noticed how much money the Northern Colorado Power company is spending for advertising to convince the people of various northern Colorado towns that they cannot afford to own their own light and power plants? Of course it is through purely philanthropic motives. There's not a town in the state with a municipally owned water service plant which does not pay a greater or less percentage of its general running expenses from the water earnings of its water works. And don't you suppose that private corporations would like to control such utilities for private gain? You bet they would! And their solicitude for the welfare of the public is always based upon a desire to conserve and promote private gain at the expense of the said public.

NOT A FREAK, ONLY CARELESSNESS

From the Polk County (Wia.) Ledger.
 No long since in this village a young man of rather muscular development was seen with two heads on his shoulders. Both heads were fully developed, with rather handsome features, one with golden hair and the other with light blond. The young man is not a freak as might be supposed. The other head was the property of his sweetheart and would not have appeared in such a deformed position had it not been for the young lady's neglect to lower the shades.

We wouldn't mention any names and our reason for mentioning the incident is as a warning to other young people.

HA! WATSON!

From the Aurora Beacon-News.
 The Aurora police are searching for an automobile which was stolen last night at Rockford. A machine answering the description of the one stolen was seen by a witness heading in the direction of Aurora. Christopher Duffy, of Ottawa, Republican candidate for clerk of the appellate court of the Second district, was campaigning in Aurora yesterday. He returned to Ottawa last night.

Ponderous Personages

GENERAL WINFIELD SCOTT
 BY GEORGE FITCH
 Author of "Old Good Old Siwash"

General Winfield Scott, who became famous by strolling across Mexico in 1847, through a hostile army three times the size of his own, was a Virginian who was born in Petersburg in 1782, and came a captain in the army twenty-two years later. In those days when the United States was young and was picked upon with great enthusiasm by most anybody, a captain in the army led a busy life. In 1812, Scott was captured by the British at Queen-town, Canada, but was afterwards exchanged. The Yankees could always beat the British trading, but they never beat them so badly as they did at this time. A year later Scott raised such havoc with the British armies at Chippewa and Lundy's Lane that he was brevetted brigadier-general, and was offered the secretaryship of war.

"A great many people have deprecated the cruelty of the United States in pitching into feeble little Mexico in this war."

Scott declined, however, and kept on doing odd jobs of fighting for many years. He had charge of the Blackhawk war and helped tame the Seminoles in Florida. In 1833, he got 62 votes for president in the Whig convention, which nominated Harrison, and when the Mexican war broke out, he was in command of the United States army which went to Vera Cruz.

A great many people have deprecated the cruelty of the United States in pitching into feeble little Mexico in this war, but it must be remembered that the pitching was done with an army never more than half the size of the Mexican army. General Scott was of a methodical disposition, and when he set out for Mexico City, he didn't linger by the way. Each day he advanced the usual distance, and if he had to advance through a Mexican army of twice his size or over a citadel perched hundreds of feet above him, it was all in the day's business. He arrived in Mexico exactly on schedule time, and experts in the war business have said that Napoleon couldn't have done a more workmanlike job.

Scott was made lieutenant-general for his Mexican campaign, and commanded the army until 1861. He ran for president in 1867, but was defeated by Pierce. This shows the difference between the United States and Mexico. When the commander of the Mexican army runs for president the other candidates all run in the opposite direction.

When the Civil war broke out, General Scott was 75 years old, and retired from command. He died in 1866. This was a mistake on his part. If he had died in 1860, he would have been a far greater man in memory. The Civil war got in front of him and hid him from the public view.

Wasted Worry

BY RUTH CAMERON

"Don't succumb to grim despair. But remember when you're glum That the hardest things to bear Are the things that never come."

"Late" Advice to Worryers and Ocean Voyagers. "All the worry" is a thing that never comes could be taken out of our lives how little there would be left.

A friend of mine has recently lost her husband and gone home to live with her father and mother. They are elderly people who could not have been left to live alone much longer, and for the past few years their daughter has been anxious about them.

John, she said to me the other day, "I always thought I'd outlive my mother. It didn't seem right with mother so feeble to leave them by themselves much longer. Besides I was afraid she might break down completely any time, and then what would I do? I'd want to be with mother, of course, but they'd hate to leave the old homestead and John wouldn't want to give up his home either, and I couldn't bear to be torn from him. Why I used to be awake nights and plan and worry about it. And now the trouble that I never worried about has come and the trouble that fretted me so has cleared itself up."

How much worry we waste in this way. If one is worried about a thing which is perfectly futile and valueless.

Worry, even over a thing which does happen, is wasted energy because it cannot do any good. It is doubly wasted when we fret and fume over something which never comes to pass.

The Mexican Situation

THE MEXICAN AGREEMENT AND SOME OF ITS UNCERTAINTIES

From the New York Tribune.
 What will interest the average American in an agreement reached or about to be reached at Niagara Falls is whether or not it promotes the objects of a national American policy, given no idea of having a definite and unalterable program for settling the Mexican problem. It blundered into intervention much against its will and has apparently now indorsed an agreement ignoring entirely the issue of reparation on which it broke with Huerta's government.

The one definite result of the Niagara Falls conference is the elimination for a time of General Carranza. That elimination has satisfied the Wilson-Bryan demand that Huerta should take himself out of the way before any readjustment of conditions should be attempted. But everything will depend upon the men named to succeed Huerta as trustees of what is left of the federal power in Mexico. If the commission which is to replace him is identified in sympathies the change will be inconsequential. Huerta has been the faithful agent of the Cientificos, and if other Cientificos succeed him the breach between the federalists and the Constitutionalists will remain unclosed and the incentives to civil strife will be just as powerful as ever.

Any effective pacification in Mexico must depend upon the cooperation of Carranza and Villa. If they reject the mediators' agreement the United States will be put in the position of having to recognize the Huerta government as legitimate and to sustain it against the revolutionists. That would be exactly the opposite of the policy which Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bryan have followed up to date. When Carranza and Villa were weak Washington befriended them; now that they have become powerful Washington seems to be in danger of rushing over to the side of the crumbling Cientificos.

The policy of the United States in Mexico should have two definite aims. One of them is to protect the lives and property of American citizens residing there and the lives and property of other nationals, our duty to the latter arising under our interpretation of the Monroe doctrine. The other is to exercise what influence we have to help Mexico maintain order and stability and become a worthy member of the brotherhood of American republics. It would have been better if the president had frankly stated these objects from the first instead of merely working to get an individual out of office.

If we are going to take responsibility for setting up a provisional government, which is to make life and property secure, guarantee a fair election for president and restore constitutionalism, we ought to back that government up with ample military force. It would be a mistake, therefore, to withdraw the troops from Vera Cruz as soon as the new provisional government is organized. The army would benefit and the restoration in Mexico would probably be hastened if, instead of moving back to Galveston, General Whiting should be ordered to establish headquarters in the salubrious country around Puebla or Jalapa. There may still be work in Mexico for the army to do.

A HUMILIATING CHAPTER

From the Boston Evening Transcript.
 Of course Washington knows, and the world will find out, that the purpose of all this evasion and deception is to facilitate the exportation of arms to the Constitutionalists. If he rupturing the Niagara conference, if the president had been desirous of stopping this traffic between the United States and Mexico, let the guns be turned against our own armies later on, he would have issued a proclamation restoring the embargo at the time he permitted the secretary of war to order army officers to hold up such shipments across the Texas border. But that is not the purpose of the president or the secretary of state. They sacrificed the lives of 20 American sailors at Vera Cruz to prevent a shipment of arms reaching Huerta. Today they are sacrificing the good faith of the nation in pretending to the mediators at Niagara and the public that they have prohibited the shipment of munitions of war to Mexico. Until a proclamation is issued restoring the embargo, the Washington government remains guilty of such deliberate deception as to discredit the sincerity of its participation in the Niagara conference. The chapter is one that may well make Americans hang their heads in shame, but it fits in with the whole wretched story of the Wilson administration's dealing in and with Mexico.

COMMENTS

From the Boston Evening Transcript.
 Mr. Bryan's open door at Tampico: American rifles going in; American coffins coming out.

From the Kansas City Star.
 "I don't like to see children," Huerta confesses. It is unpleasant to do, isn't it?

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.
 Villa and Carranza are again holding up mediation. Still, it's the nature of bandits to do the "holding" act, and to these two worthies it must seem quite the logical thing.

From the Kansas City Journal.
 A scientist declares that Niagara Falls will wholly disappear in 3,000 years. The mediation board should look at the clock occasionally.

From the Philadelphia North American.
 "Huerta's personal interests may keep him in Mexico indefinitely," writes a correspondent. Possibly another way of saying that Carranza will detain him to help populate his cemetery lot.

From the Kansas City Journal.
 General Villa is a modest man. He is willing for Carranza to have the honors of the revolution, reserving for himself only the lion's share of the loot and the privilege of collecting it in his own gentle way.

IN THE EARLY DAYS

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 10, 1884.
 Thomas Gowenlock, a well-known druggist, was convicted of violating the liquor ordinance and Justice Fields fined him $150 and costs.

The mountain lion which had been an attraction at Hiestand's museum in Manitou had died.

Grading the Antlers park was progressing nicely and would soon be finished.

W. S. Walker was exhibiting specimens of free gold from the placer diggings on the north side of the divide.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 10, 1894.
 An agreement was finally reached between the county authorities, General Brooks, the mine owners and Governor Waite that effectually ended the trouble in Cripple Creek. The deputies were to be withdrawn; the mines placed in the respectable possession of the owners; military protection to be afforded to both mines and miners; troops to remain at Cripple Creek for 30 days, or longer if necessary, miners to deliver up all arms remaining in their possession, also all other property taken from the mines; persons for whom the sheriff had warrants, or for whom warrants might be issued, to be arrested and turned over to him.

The members of the Colorado Springs Bicycle club and their friends enjoyed a trip through the Garden of the Gods.

The Cog road was again open for business. The severe storms had interrupted traffic for nearly a week.

The commencement exercises of Colorado college were begun. President Stocum preached the baccalaureate sermon in the college chapel.

BOILS

Since the time of Job a man's behavior when afflicted with boils has been the standard by which his patience has been determined. Boils hurt; they are so diabolical in their selection of locations, and they keep coming.

It is an ill wind that blows good to no one. The blood purifier people have reaped a rich harvest by selling blood medicine to people with boils. Their false money is at an end. Almost everybody knows now that boils do not result from impure blood and that blood purifiers do not help one to get out of the Job class.

When a person near middle life has crops of boils, it is advisable that he go to a physician and find out if he has diabetes. With that ruled out, the cause of boils comes back to infection of the skin and the tissue below it by pus germs.

The age-old custom of poulticing a boil with a hot-flaxseed poultice made the skin soft and soggy, and a dull knife could cut it without difficulty. Incidentally, it infected the nearby skin and caused a crop to grow where one boil had grown before. Therefore, the plan now followed is to clean the skin and keep it clean—bacteriologically clean.

Berger says to paint the boil and an inch around it on every side with tincture of iodine. Give it a good coat. Then apply ichthyol vaseline. 10 cent on a piece of gauze, cover with cotton and a bandage. The next day the dressing is removed, the skin treated with benzine, then the painting with iodine and the application of the ichthyol ointment are repeated.

This is kept up day after day, unless the skin is irritated by the iodine. If so, the iodine is left off and the ichthyol ointment alone is used. When the boil heads it may be lanced or left to open by itself at the discretion of the physician.

PUT WORRY ASIDE.

Anxious Mother writes: "I am the mother of three children, the youngest only 2 weeks old. I had to raise my older children from the time they were a month old on a bottle on account of not having nourishment enough for them. I seem to be in good health and I weigh about 150 pounds. But I am not a hearty eater. Is there anything I can do or eat that will cause me to become a proper nourishment for my little baby?"

REPLY.

Drink plenty of water, especially in the open air, stop being an anxious mother, and eat plenty of wholesome food. Of these the most important is mental calm. There are no milk foods. Eat whatever you like and digest well. Often, anxious mothers, who are not really fat, but little overweight, think from their food.

TOO MUCH FOOD.

Mrs. K. B. writes: "Will you kindly tell me why my baby, 4 weeks old, vomits after nursing? I nurse him from five to 10 minutes every three hours. He weighed six and one-half pounds when born and now weighs nine and one-half pounds, so apparently my milk agrees with him. Parents say he vomits all the milk in one large stream. I have a great deal of milk, so probably he gets too much at a time. Will you please tell me what to do to overcome this? He also has a great deal of wind."

AUSTRALIA TO EXHIBIT COLLECTION GAME BIRDS

WASHINGTON, June 8.—A permit has been granted the Australian government to import a varied collection of game birds into the United States for exhibition at the Panama-Pacific exposition next year. Niel Nelson, Australian commissioner to the exposition, made application to the treasury department for permission to bring in the birds, and they will be given a prominent place in the Australian building.

Birds of paradise, the best specimens of which come from some of the Australian islands, will figure prominently in the exhibit, which will also comprise a large variety of pheasants and other game birds.
